

Tradition 11: Take Away Questions

1. Am I satisfied with being an “anonymous member” of AA even if I don’t get attention, praise or recognition?
2. Am I a good ambassador of AA principles with those around me? (my family, friends and those I work with)? Do I feel like the way I live and conduct myself attracts people to AA?
3. Can I resist the urge to publicly associate myself with the fellowship even when it would win me praise or influence?
4. Do my social media posts align with the spirit of anonymity-or do I use recovery and related content to seek attention or build a brand?
5. Do I feel unappreciated or slighted because I don’t get public recognition for my efforts and service work in AA?
